Water New Zealand

Who are we?

We are the professional body for the three waters sector and industry leaders in the promotion of best practice for the sustainable management and health of drinking, waste and stormwater in Aotearoa, New Zealand. Our members work across all aspects of the sector and we are the principal voice representing the expertise that make up the three waters sector.

Our membership is made up of industry leaders as well as those working at all levels across the three waters – from chief executives to engineers, technicians, researchers, scientists, operators, trainees and students.

Working closely with our members and partners, Water New Zealand's commitment is to improve capability, competency and upskilling to ensure a fit-for-purpose workforce across the three waters. We offer professional development, networking, industry knowledge and opportunities to influence and play a leadership role in the sector.

We also support members through special interest groups and regional meetings and we run conferences, webinars and symposiums.

Our flagship journal Water, as well as the Pipeline e-newsletter and the Water Directory are our publications.

Water Journal

Water journal, published five times a year, is our premier publication, providing an important vehicle for ensuring that members and key stakeholders stay up to date with latest developments, innovation and trends.

The journal is available to our membership base of approximately 3000, and distributed to key decision makers and other industry leaders. A digital version of Water is available online and on our website.

Advertising in Water is an ideal way to raise your profile in the industry and build or maintain brand awareness, and ensure that your products and services are seen by key industry decision makers.

Key topics covered for Water:

Stormwater, waste water, drinking water, smart water (innovation), drinking water treatment, onsite wastewater, backflow, pipe renewals, infrastructure, green infrastructure, water sensitive urban design, digital water, modelling, research, sector performance, planning tools, climate change, Te Ao Maori (Maori world view), freshwater, water loss issues, inflow and infiltration, technical guidance, small water systems, training, upskilling and competence, small wastewater and natural systems.

Pipeline

We publish a fortnightly e-newsletter, Pipeline, currently sent to approximately 9,169 subscribers from among our membership and the wider sector.

Pipeline contains the latest updates, industry news, events and links to information relevant to anyone working, or with an interest, in the three waters sector. Organisations can list job vacancies in each issue, which are also posted on our website so it is an ideal place to go if you are looking for a new job in the sector or looking to employ someone. We also allow a limited number of display advertisements throughout the newsletter.

Water Directory

The Water Directory is an online resource of suppliers to the wider water sector. Listing in the directory is an ideal way to ensure that potential clients can find you. The Directory is also published in print form once a year, and if you have a current online listing you will automatically be included in this.

Water Directory

Brought to you by Water New Zealand

The Water Directory provides an easily accessible resource for anyone seeking suppliers of goods and services in the water sector. As a ‘who supplies what’ source of options, the directory offers extremely targeted searching allowing users to quickly identify the companies that can provide the services or products they need.

Listing in the directory is an ideal way to ensure that potential clients can find you. For more information, rates or a listing form please email advertising@waternz.org.nz.

The Water Directory is also printed annually, and if you are on the website, you will automatically be included. The printed directory is organised in three sections; by company name, by category, and by brand.

In addition to company listings, there are opportunities for display advertising on the website.

Water New Zealand Corporate members receive a 10% discount off all rates.
